

BRUCE. Well no, but maybe you judge everybody too quickly.

Start PRUDENCE. Well perhaps. But how many nights would you give David Berkowitz?

BRUCE. You went out with David Berkowitz?

PRUDENCE. No. It was a rhetorical question.

BRUCE. You must ask yourself what you want. Do you want to be married?

PRUDENCE. I have no idea. It's so confusing. I know when I was a little girl, Million Dollar Movie showed this film called "Every Girl Should Be Married" every night for seven days. It was this dumb comedy about this infantile girl played by Betsy Drake who wants to be married to this pediatrician played by Cary Grant who she sees in a drug store. She sees him for two minutes, and she wants to move in and have babies with him. And he finds her totally obnoxious, but then at the end of the movie suddenly says, "You're right, you're adorable," and then they get married. (Looks baffled by the stupidity of it all)

BRUCE. Well it was a comedy.

PRUDENCE. And what confused me further was that the actress Betsy Drake did in fact marry Cary Grant in real life. Of course, it didn't last, and he married several other people, and then later Dyan Cannon said he was insane and took LSD and so maybe one wouldn't want to be married to him at all. But if it's no good being married to Cary Grant, who is it good being married to?

BRUCE. I don't know.

End PRUDENCE. Neither do I.

BRUCE. Well you should give things time. First im-
